Pocono Art Center launches drive to raise $1 million

SHAWNEE-ON-THE-DELAWARE — The Pocono Arts Center sits upon a high bluff overlooking the Delaware River, and it is hoped that next summer the center will be a mecca for the young musician, painter, sculptor and artist, according to Mrs. Marcia Clapp De Rocco, chairman of the board of the P.A.C.

Sunday, the Board of the Directors of the P.A.C. announced the acquisition of a new property consisting of 112 acres and 39 buildings. The property is located near Shawnee-on-Delaware, and was formerly owned by the Big Brothers Association of Philadelphia, known as Camp Wyomissing.

After a short ballet performed by the Pennsylvania Ballet Company and a garden party reception, Mrs. De Rocco revealed the proposed development of the Center complex.

The property was recently bought by the P.A.C. for $125,000, and an additional 75 acres for $83,000, Mrs. De Rocco said.

The principal goal which was launched Sunday for a permanent auditorium is $1 million, according to Mrs. De Rocco.

The auditorium or pavilion which will overlook the Delaware River will be used for performances by the Philadelphia Orchestra, the Pittsburgh Symphony, the Pennsylvania Ballet and other leading cultural organizations in the state.

In the interim, the use of the existing building is assigned to workshops and classrooms in painting, sculpture, crafts, music and dance. A drama group is now using the 400-seat theatre.

Formal dedication of the Center property will take place at the East Stroudsburg High School auditorium at a concert given on June 11, 1969, by the Philadelphia Orchestra conducted by Eugene Ormandy, for which a contract has already been signed.

Mrs. De Rocco said the million dollar pavilion will be air conditioned with numerous sliding doors to permit quick and easy entry and exit from one section of the pavilion to another.

She has invited numerous high school student council groups from all over Pennsylvania for an art seminar at the Pocono Arts Center on July 23.

The possibility of federal and state aid for the Center was explained Sunday by Vincent Artz, executive director of the Pennsylvania Council of Arts.

"State appropriations for the performing arts are $248,000 in the 1968-1969 fiscal year," Artz said. "In addition we expect to receive about $50,000 from federal funds."

Asked if the Pocono Arts Center would be in a position to receive any of the monies, he said, "This is an area in which we function."

He added that any money given in grants is matched by local funds.

Ormandy and the Philadelphia Orchestra made the first attempt to set up a summer season in the Poconos when they gave a concert at East Stroudsburg High School on September 14, 1963.

Ormandy told the audience after the concert: "It is a long old dream of mine; I've dreamed of it for 20 years."

The Pocono Arts Center had acquired 25 acres of a mountain site. The orchestra returned to play two more concerts the next summer, that time at Shawnee-on-Delaware, using a portable shell on a lawn next to the Delaware River.

Construction of a shell at the proposed permanent site meanwhile failed to materialize, as dissension among the Pocono area business community was reported to have caused collapse of plans.

Among the P.A.C. honorary Board of Advisors are President Dwight D. Eisenhower, Gov. Raymond P. Shafer, Stuart F. Louchheim, president of the Philadelphia Academy of Music and Fred Waring, of Shawnee and a member of the state arts council.

Members of the Board of Directors include, in addition to Mrs. De Rocco, William L. Connell, Jr., one of the board of directors of the Scranton Museum Assn. and member of the Pennsylvania Council on the Arts and president of the Lackawanna Historical Society; M. Keen Cornell of Waverly, business man; Robert Davenport, vice-president of the Monroe Security Bank and Trust Company, Stroudsburg.

Also Miss Annette Evans, founder of the Wilkes-Barre Pine Arts Fiesta; Mortimer Ryan, lawyer and executive officer of International Salt Company; Mrs. Andrew Sordani, Jr., also a member of the Pennsylvania Council on the Arts, Wilkes-Barre.

Also James K. Stone, member of the Board of Directors of the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts, Philadelphia; Mrs. Fred Waring, Shawnee; and Mrs. John L. Wintersteen, until recently chairman of the board of the Philadelphia Museum of Art.

Seaway strike appears over

OTTAWA (AP) — St. Lawrence Seaway workers voted Sunday on a contract proposal to end the peak-season strike that has stranded 70 ocean-going ships and idled 200 lake vessels since June 21. The agreement was reached late Saturday.

W.J. Smith, president of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers, said he hoped to have the settlement ratified before Monday.

Clifford in Saigon; Red attack feared

SAIGON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Clark M. Clifford arrived here Sunday as Saigon braced for a threatened enemy offensive that intelligence reports could be the fiercest of the war.

It is his first visit to South Vietnam since becoming defense chief. A massive security force of American and South Vietnamese military police swarmed through Saigon in a joint effort to protect Clifford and stem the flow of Viet Cong suicides squads reported pouring into the capital for the threatened offensive.

Clifford, who will spend two days in the capital and two days touring the provinces, said he would discuss with President Nguyen Van Thieu the improvement of South Vietnamese forces.

He said the United States would speed up delivery of modern M16 rifles to South Vietnamese forces "even at the expense of our own forces." The U.S. hopes to build up the firepower and effectiveness of the Army of the Republic of Vietnam—ARVN—to the point where it might one day take over the main burden of the war.

Clifford declined to set any date when U.S. forces might begin to withdraw, saying this depended on how fast the ARVN can be built up, the amount of enemy pressure and possible developments at the Paris peace talks.

He also declined to speculate what effect the threatened offensive against Saigon might have on the partial cessation of bombing of North Vietnam.

Clifford was accompanied by Gen. Earle Wheeler, chairman of the U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff; William Bundy, assistant secretary of state for East Asian and Pacific affairs; Carl Warkne, assistant secretary of defense for international security affairs, and Phil G. Goulding, as assistant secretary of defense for public affairs.

Besides his conferences with the South Vietnamese president, Clifford will spend most of his time in Saigon at top secret briefings given by Gen. Creighton Abrams, the U.S. commander, and his senior officers. He will also meet with Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker and his top advisers in the U.S. mission.

At the conclusion of his four-day visit, Clifford will fly to Hanoi to brief President Johnson at a conference with President Thieu.

Intelligence reports say six enemy divisions backed up by artillery and 122mm and 140mm rockets will attack Saigon some time this week. Vietnamese sources estimated 1,000 Viet Cong commandos have already entered the capital to blow up communications networks and assassinate government leaders when the attack begins.

One indication of a new offensive is the month-long lull in fighting and the discovery of several large weapons caches around the perimeters of Saigon.

Gov. Reagan may become GOP presidential candidate

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — California Gov. Ronald Reagan has changed his tune, and there are signs a drive is building to win him the Republican presidential nomination at the national convention.

No longer does Reagan say,

"I am not a candidate," or even, "I am not a declared candidate."

Instead, he says, "My name will be placed in nomination. Obviously at that time I can be considered a candidate by delegates so inclined."

No longer does Reagan attempt to publicly discourage efforts on his behalf by groups such as the National Citizens for Reagan organization based in Topeka, Kan.

He has given his permission for the Topeka group to show a film of his June 13 address in Indianapolis, Ind., during a half hour of prime national television network time next Sunday evening July 21. The cost is estimated at up to $100,000.

The film is expected to be accompanied by a pitch for delegates to vote for Reagan at the GOP convention opening Aug. 5 in Miami Beach, Fla.

"I've given up some time ago" trying to stop the unofficial campaign conducted by citizens for Reagan, the governor told a news conference last week. "The movement kept springing up. There were well-intentioned people that insisted on their right to make this effort and told me they were. And I've tried to level with them."

Reagan vigorously denied as a "total fabrication" this past week a Boston newspaper report that he would announce his formal candidacy on the July 21 telecast.

Reagan said recently it would serve no purpose for him to announce his candidacy before the convention opened.

Meanwhile, Reagan continues to insist his role as a favorite son candidate from California is designed to assure party unity and to give California its proper voice in the convention.

He says his out-of-state speaking engagements, which have raised more than $4 million for the party during the past year and a half, are just part of his "party chores." It is not an attempt to gather delegate votes at the national convention, he adds.

An influential California Republican, a member of the 86-vote Reagan delegation, says "There are a lot of people who are putting pressure" on Reagan to make an outright effort to win the nomination.

But the Republican, who asked that his name not be used, said, "In private conversations with the governor, I don't get the impression that he's very revved up about it himself."

Shafer endorses gun control bill

HARRISBURG (AP) — Legislators hopeful of enacting stronger gun control in Pennsylvania are expected to meet opposition from the sportsmen's bloc when they present a compromise measure in the House today.

Backers of gun control received the support Saturday of Gov. Shafer who announced his preference for the compromise bill drafted last Wednesday by Democratic Minority Leader Herbert Fineman and Rep. John S. Renninger, R-Bucks.

Should gun control pass the House, prospects for prompt action in the Senate appear slim, as the senators look forward to the beginning of an extended summer recess.

The legislation Renninger and Fineman drafted calls for registration of handguns. It exempts rifles and shotguns. The measure would require all gun users to obtain a State Police permit for their weapons.

Shafer called the proposal "a good, workable bill."

Fineman, a Philadelphia Democrat, conceded that rifle and shotgun registration was omitted from the plan to neutralize the protests of sportsmen.

His co-author, Renninger, opposes rifle registration as serving no real purpose. He called on sportsmen to lend their "considered support" to what he termed "a sound and sensible approach."

Both representatives, however, acknowledged that sportsmen in the House would not relent in their continuing battle against the measure, even with the compromise.

The sportsmen have pledged to oppose any legislation they believe would infringe on the right of an individual, particularly the game hunter, to own or use a firearm.

Their opposition, and their terms in which it is expressed, have not changed with each gun control proposal attempted here since the murder of U. S. Sen. Robert F. Kennedy a month ago.

A victory for the bill in the House, though satisfying to its champions, might not provide enough momentum for full passage this session.

Senate Majority Leader Stanley G. Stroup saw little chance that his chamber would act within the week.

"I think they're rushing gun controls too fast for adequate consideration," the Bedford County Republican commented.

Both chambers reconvene Monday for what GOP leaders forecast will be the final work week before a summer break lasting into September.

Another issue jeopardizing speedy recess of the legislature is the question of capital borrowing by the state or any of its designated agencies.

Soviet bloc at summit

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — The two top leaders of the Soviet Union met in a five-nation Communist party summit meeting here Sunday apparently to talk over their fears that Czechoslovakia's liberalization drive may be getting out of party control.

In advance of the meeting, the Polish Communist party demanded a "firm rebuff" for "hostile forces" in Czechoslovakia.

The Polish news agency Papp reported the meeting got under way with Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin and Communist party Secretary General Leonid I. Brezhnev gathered with top party delegates from Poland, East Germany, Hungary and Bulgaria. Romania and Czechoslovakia were not present.

Decked out

Director of state ballet pleads for more federal aid

SHAWNEE — Mrs. Barbara Weisberger, director of the Pennsylvania Ballet, championed the arts in the United States when she asked for a "more real and pertinent" reassessment of art and culture in a country where the federal government allocates only $5 million annually for the performing arts.

All non-commercial art ventures eke out at best "a tenuous thread of existence," she told an audience of about 100 persons who vigorously applauded two members of her troupe at the Pocono Art Center's newly acquired complex at Shawnee-on-Delaware.

Hilda Morales and Bill Joseph gave a highly polished performance of a Pas de Deux based on Donizetti's Variations in what was formerly the main recreation hall of Camp Wyomissing owned by the Big Brothers Association of Philadelphia.

Mrs. Weisberger apologized to the audience for not using the full complement of the Pennsylvania Ballet which comprises 30 dancers. But the stage was too small for a full scale production by the company, she said.

She told the audience of the pitfalls involved in making art and culture a commercial success in this country. "The recent surge of interest in art (in this country)," she said, "is built on a quicksand base."

She called for a responsibility of support in art and culture, and pointed out on the credit side the large numbers of festival centers springing up across the country.

She recommended more government subsidies in the fields of art and complimented the state art councils for their prodigious efforts on behalf of the performing arts.

One of Pennsylvania's finest ambassadors, Fred Waring, echoed her thoughts when he told the audience to "get behind the Pocono Arts Center." Waring is a member of the Pennsylvania Art Council.

Congress works toward recess

WASHINGTON (AP) — Foreign-aid and gun-control legislation, plus more than $115 billion in appropriations provide Congress this week its busiest schedule of the year.

Long meetings every day including Saturday have been ordered by congressional leaders in an effort to wind up the session finally before the national nominating conventions begin early in August.

If everything on the week's schedule is disposed of—an unlikely happening—dimming hopes of the lawmakers to close shop for keeps not later than Aug. 3 would be considerably brightened.

Candles lit for Pueblo in Uniontown

UNIONTOWN, Pa. (AP) — A flame flickers in memory of the Pueblo crewmen.

It was lit Saturday night following a memorial parade and ceremonies and will burn until the war in Vietnam ends.

"Those who are here tonight care," Mayor Eugene E. Fike told a gathering of some 800 in a park. "My only hope is that the people who are not here also care."

An estimated 5,000 persons watched the 45-minute parade that preceded the lighting ceremony. The Jaycees passed out 10,000 bumper stickers reading, "I care. Remember the Pueblo."

The guest of honor was Leo McClaren of Johnstown whose son was aboard the U.S.S. Pueblo when it was seized by North Koreans about six months ago.

"The only thing that we can do is pray," said McClaren. "And I pray all the time."

Crash kills four persons

CHAMBERSBURG, Pa. (AP) — A car skidded off a curve in a country road before dawn Sunday and slammed into a tree, killing four young persons and injuring two others.

State troopers said the dead were trapped in the wreckage for two hours before the top of the car was cut away and the bodies removed.

The dead, all from the Chambersburg area, were Sharon Jackson, 19, of Rt. 1, Green-Castle; Carl R. Rhone, 19, of Pond Bank; Larry W. Cordell, 22, of Shadygrove; and Kenneth L. Forsythe, 20, of Rt. 6, Chambersburg.

Hospitalized were the driver, William F. Kriner, 23, of Rt. 6, Chambersburg with a fractured shoulder; and William L. Gonder, 25, of Rt. 2, Mercersburg, with two fractured legs.

The crash occurred at 2:30 a.m. on the Kaufmann Station Road about six miles south of Chambersburg.

Rocky to take nationwide poll

NEW YORK (AP) — Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller said Sunday he has commissioned a nationwide public opinion poll to see who the voters think would be the strongest Republican presidential candidate.

Rockefeller proposed an official Republican Party poll last Tuesday, but was rebuffed by GOP National Chairman Ray Bliss and his opponent for the Republican presidential nomination, Richard M. Nixon.

"I'm very sorry that they did reject the proposal," Rockefeller said. "I can only draw the conclusion that they don't want this brought out too sharply."

"I decided to go ahead anyway and undertake a national poll," the governor said. It will be conducted by Crossley S-D Surveys Inc., of New York City, he said.

Rockefeller spoke on the ABC program "Issues and Answers," taped Saturday for airing Sunday.

The governor declined to discuss the cost of such a poll, but had said last week it could run at least an average of $5,000 per state.

Rockefeller said the poll, which was to begin immediately, would allow his forces to "break out key areas, key states, key cities."

This type of analysis might enable the Rockefeller people to produce poll confirmation for their belief that the New York governor has great strength in major urban areas, and thus could command decisive electoral votes in November.

SHINGLES

By Dr. Thomas F. Snyder, D.C.

Shingles is an acute painful condition of the area affected, generally of the back, sides, rib cage shoulders, or buttocks. Shingles is differentiated by a skin eruption which accompanies it over the site of the nerves involved.

Shingles is caused by an irritation to the posterior nerve roots of sections of the spinal cord. The pain becomes so severe it sometimes resembles a lightning shock.

Falls, accidents, long exposure to cold, anemia, and malaria are often factors which precede this condition.

Since the chiropractor is vitally interested in the spine and spinal cord, he is capable of locating and adjusting the points of the spine involved, causing the pressure of the nerves to be eliminated.

(One of a series of articles published in the public interest to explain and illustrate the scientific practice of Chiropractic, written by Dr. Thomas F. Snyder, Chiropractor, Brodheadsville, Pa., Phone: 952-4787.)

Bishop Corson ordains Englishmen

By PEGGY BANCROFT
Record Correspondent

PHILADELPHIA — In his final act of ordination as Resident Bishop, Bishop Fred Pierce Corson Friday conducted The Service of Ordination for two young Englishmen, the Rev. David W. Flude, South Sterling United Methodist Charge, and the Rev. Stuart Thody, Providence United Methodist Church, Philadelphia.

The two young British citizens, who came to this country four years ago at Bishop Corson's invitation, were ordained Elders of the Methodist Church of America.

The ordination was an unique and historic occasion, as the two former Local Preachers in Leicester Circuits, England, had been elected as Elders of the Church by the Puerto Rico Conference of which Bishop Corson is Bishop.

And it was historic in another sense. One hundred and ninety-seven years ago, a young preacher left the industrial midlands of England and sailed for America. On Sunday, October 27, 1771, he arrived in Philadelphia and was given a warm welcome in Old St. George's Church.

Francis Asbury had arrived in America. This one man, more than any other, was to have a great effect upon the life of the Church in America.

During his life he traveled 270,000 miles along trails that were often uncharted. He crossed the Appalachians sixty times, preached 16,000 times, and averaged a sermon a day for fifty years. And by the unanimous vote of the famous "Christmas Conference" in Baltimore, Maryland, in 1784, he was ordained as Superintendent of the Methodist work in America, thus becoming American Methodist's first Bishop.

The two young Englishmen who were ordained Friday also left an industrial midland city, Leicester, for the United States. And their ordination was held in the same spot where Francis Asbury first preached on American soil.

Bishop Corson, who has served as Bishop of one area for the longest term of any American Bishop, has led the Philadelphia Area for 24 years. He retires at the end of this month when the Jurisdictional Conference meets in West Virginia.

Sharing in the Ordination Service at Old St. George's were a number of American Methodist Pastors including the Rev. Dr. George Y. Flinn, chairman of the Wyoming Conference Board of Ministerial Training and Pastor of the Tabernacle Church in Binghamton, N.Y.; the Rev. John N. Roberts, formerly of Mountainhome, and now pastor of Trinity United Methodist Church, Chester, Pa.

A special guest was a real link with British Methodism, the Rev. H. Ormonde McConnell, MBE, Chairman of the Haiti District who flew to Philadelphia as a personal friend to the two young ministers.

Old St. George's is the oldest Methodist Church in the world in continuous use.

The two men are perhaps best known in this area for their formation of Vacationland Ministries, Inc., designed as an outreach to the thousands of vacationers who visit in the Pocono Mountains.

The Rev. Stuart Thody formerly served at Thompson, Pa. He is a Director of the Northeastern Pennsylvania Council on Alcoholism; Treasurer of the Wyoming Conference TRAFCO; Sub-district MYF Advisor; and secretary of Vacationland Ministries.

The Rev. David W. Flude is president of the Board of Directors of the Newfoundland Area Public Library; a Director of the Newfoundland Theatre League, Inc.; Chairman of the Wyoming Conference TRAFCO; Pocono Sub-district MYF Advisor; Chairman of the Vacationland Ministries Program. He served first in the Philadelphia Conference at Epworth, Bethlehem, where he and Mrs. Flude began a new church, bringing in over 100 members in less than two years and erecting the first unit of the Church buildings.

Both young men attended Wesley Theological Seminary in Washington, D.C., and completed a four-year course of study prescribed by the Methodist Church.

Both are remembered best in England for their outstanding service to the Youth Missionary Association, both serving on the Connexional Committee and both serving as District

Secretaries for YMA in the Oxford and Leicester District.

The Rev. Mr. Flude is married to the former Norma Henderson, also a Local Preacher; the Rev. Mr. Thody's wife is the former Eluned Denman.

Public knowledge area obligation

Recently we have been criticised for reporting upcoming negotiations with companies studying the possibilities of moving into the Pocono Mountain region.

We have been accused of scaring off firms interested in moving into this region. We are told that the advance publicity is not taken kindly by concerns seeking locations in this area. We are also informed that pre-settlement notification of interest is cause for raising the price of property.

It is quite obvious that we don't agree — and for many reasons.

First, it is our belief that the people of the Pocono Mountains and those residing in the section that may be in question at the time, have the right to know the name of the firm, how much land it requires and the product it manufactures before any type of formal action is taken.

People not only have this right, but those concerned with the transaction are obligated to inform the people of future plans in surrounding land.

It is also our feeling that a company would want to know in advance just how it will be received in an area. A well received company can rest assured that its product produced or service rendered will be better than a poorly received company.

We doubt very much that advance public knowledge of a transaction can force a spiraling of land prices. There is a land price in vogue at the time, although it may change from year to year.

The incoming people know the value of this land and they realize the value they put on the land for their own interests. No advance notice can change these figures.

We are probably as interested in the expansion of the Poconos as any other individual, individuals or concerns. We believe in proper expansion and proper expansion comes only through the public knowledge of such events.

We feel that an informed public is important to the success of the Pocono Mountains and all the industry that may ever locate in this region.

Wrestling center

A recent property transaction may form the foundation of the largest wrestling camp in the United States someday being located in the Marshalls Creek area of Monroe County.

Three wrestling coaches last week purchased the Oak Grove House property and plan to turn it into a summer camp for wrestling enthusiasts next year.

The three camp owners are Clyde "Red" Witman, head wrestling coach at East Stroudsburg State College; Johnny Johnston, former Eastern Intercollegiate and National Collegiate Athletic Assn. champion and head mentor at Princeton University; and Samuel J. Corsen, head coach at Collingswood, N.J., High School.

Oak Grove has operated many years as a resort, but now will become a camp, dealing primarily with wrestling, but possibly expanding into football, basketball, tennis, etc., in future years.

The Poconos now threaten to become the number one wrestling location during the summer months, or certainly one of the biggest in the east.

The newly developed camp will not only draw college and high school wrestlers as students, but will also have outstanding wrestlers, wrestling coaches and officials from all over the United States as instructors.

We feel this proposed wrestling camp is another plus sign for the Poconos. It will not only expand the number of camps in the area, but will draw many more people to the area, the type of which might not come into the locality except for a camp of this type.

The proposed wrestling camp is another example of our growing area.

Like The Territory?

An Indian from a reservation visited Chicago and while wandering around the town was stopped by a native of the Windy City who asked, "How do you like our town?"

"All right," said the Indian, "And how do you like our country?"

Ah, Those Dishes!

This notice regarding a men's supper to which wives were invited, was sent out by a country church: "All members are reminded to bring their wives and one other covered dish."

"Son," a father told his growing boy, "just remember one thing: I know a lot more about being young than you do about being old."

Fortas opposition grows

WASHINGTON — Despite the rash of stories that the attack on the nomination of Abe Fortas as Chief Justice is crumbling, there are increasing signs that the opposition is gaining new recruits in the Senate.

In addition to the 18 Republicans who are fighting the nomination, two Senate Democratic leaders are now privately saying they will join the "block Fortas drive" by voting against all efforts to cut off debate when the nomination comes before the Senate.

The Democratic recruits against invoking closure, a legislative device necessary to defeat the Republicans' threatened filibuster, are Sen. Russell Long (La.), Senate Democratic Whip, and Sen. Robert Byrd (W. Va.), Secretary of the Democratic Conference.

Both senators also have indicated that they plan to defy the White House by voting against Fortas' nomination should it ever come to a Senate vote.

Chance dwindling

The chances of the Senate voting on the controversial nomination at this session of Congress are dwindling every day because of the rush to adjourn by August 3 for the political conventions.

According to the private polls of senators Paul Fannin, (R. Ariz.), and Robert Griffin (R. Mich.), leaders of the growing coalition against Fortas, more than a dozen Senate Democrats already have passed the word that they will oppose any effort by Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield (D. Mont.) to cut off debate.

Illustrative of this "silent opposition" is Sen. John Sparkman (D. Ala.) who told the GOP Senators when questioned about how he would vote:

"I have never voted for closure since coming to the Senate and I don't plan to do so now."

With one vacancy (the seat of late Senator Kennedy) in the Senate, a maximum of 34 votes or two-thirds of those voting and present are needed to defeat any move to invoke closure.

By present count, the Fannin-Griffin forces are within one of the magic 34 needed to block action on Fortas' nomination at this session. The opponents believe other Democrats will join them to defeat closure as soon as Long and Byrd make known their positions.

Backlash

President Johnson's backstage pressures against GOP opponents of the Fortas nomination is bringing results just the opposite to what was intended.

For example, the president had West Coast Businessman Edgar Kaiser call Senator Hiram Fong of Hawaii, to urge him to drop his opposition. Instead of changing his position, Fong was so burned up over the pressure that he reported the incident to Fannin and Griffin.

Other GOP senators, being pressured by Senate Minority Leader Dirksen (R. Ill.), to drop their opposition to Fortas, are now privately talking of having one of their group challenge the Illinois senator's faltering leadership next year if he continues his tactics.

In the coming Senate floor battle, the campaign that his GOP colleagues are planning to wage against the Fortas nomination could put Dirksen in a highly embarrassing position.

Their strategy calls for the highlighting of Fortas' crucial fifth vote to restrict police power in the Supreme Court's historic 5-4 decision in the Mirana Case.

In a speech being prepared for delivery in the Senate, Fannin will recall that a majority of the Senate within the past month voted to overturn that controversial decision by amending the administration's anti-crime bill.

As one of the leaders in that fight, Dirksen will be reminded that a vote for Fortas now will in effect negate that congressional action. Both President Johnson and Fortas already have indicated they have no plans to carry out that section of the new anti-crime law.

Boo-boos showing

WASHINGTON — Richard Nixon and Nelson Rockefeller are showing a nervous over eagerness which is hurting them both.

As the frontrunner comfortably certain of being nominated, Nixon has lately been causing his friends anxiety by quickie, off-the-cuff comments which remind them of the tense, old Nixon rather than the relaxed new Nixon.

As the backrunner uncomfortably uncertain of being nominated, Rockefeller is doing himself no good by oversharpening his attacks on Nixon and by reaching for unrealistic campaign gimmicks.

Rockefeller seems pretty desperate to be proposing a "Republican-sponsored" poll of the nation's voters by "an unimpeachable polling organization" to help the convention choose its nominee.

Polls available

Such polls are now and will continue to be available. All the "unimpeachable polling organizations" are taking them all the time. The catch in the Rockefeller proposal is that the Republican party itself employ a pollster and make it an "official" poll. But the findings would be no different and no more scientific than we are already getting — and because of its partisan sponsorship would tend to be less, not more, credible.

GOP National Chairman Ray Bliss was entirely reasonable in saying no.

It also smacks of gimmickry for Rocky to try to entice conservative Republicans by his now-you-see-it-now-you-don't talk about a Rockefeller-Reagan ticket. It is an artificial ticket and a political come-on unworthy of Rockefeller.

Nixon supporters are quite aware that the only man who can defeat Nixon is Nixon himself. This is why they shudder a little when their candidate gives the impression that he is speaking too hastily after he has read the morning headlines. Three incidents give them some concern:

1 — When a Vietnam-bound United States

Harris survey

Distribution of Wallace's vote could decide presidential race

By LOUIS HARRIS

A shadow of uncertainty over this uncertain political year are the indicated 10 million votes former Gov. George Wallace of Alabama would receive were the elections held today.

Running on a third-party ticket, Wallace is polling approximately 15 per cent of the vote nationwide. How that vote is finally distributed may determine who will be the next president of the United States.

Here are the key facts about the Wallace vote today:

— For every vote he would take away from Hubert Humphrey or Eugene McCarthy on the Democratic line, Wallace currently takes nearly two votes away from either Richard Nixon or Nelson Rockefeller on the Republican line. With Wallace out of the race, the GOP would be at least three points stronger.

— A threshold for Wallace voters is the decision of whether to vote for the former Alabama governor or for former Vice President Nixon. A major determinant locking-in the Wallace vote today is the conviction of 57 per cent of these people that "Nixon has lost too many elections" and presumably cannot win this year if nominated. Wallace voters are considerably more convinced that Nixon cannot win the electorate as a whole. Therefore, they reason, they will not be throwing their vote away on Wallace, but rather will be registering a meaningful protest.

Strong in south

— Over half the Wallace vote comes from the South; two out of every three are men; over six in 10 come from small-town and rural America; 99 per cent are white; 85 per cent are Protestant. Wallace draws twice as many votes from those whites who never went past the eighth grade as from those who have been to college.

— Outside the South, Wallace is drawing more heavily from voters who cast their ballots for Barry Goldwater four years ago than from any other single bloc. Thus far, he has not mobilized a significant backlash vote in the big Northern cities from low-income, ethnic minorities who are hostile to accelerating the rate of civil rights for Negroes. If Wallace were to make inroads into this group, he could not only add another 5 or 6 points to his overall showing, but could hurt the Democratic Party appreciably.

— Wallace has a generally negative profile among all voters, but is admired by 77 per cent for "having the courage to say what he really thinks." His strongest campaign appeal is the promise to turn back race relations to the states, an idea rejected by the American public as a whole by only a narrow 41-to-37 per cent margin. Almost a third of the nation thinks he can "keep law and order the way it should be kept," if elected president, although four in 10 disagree.

The biggest handicaps of the Wallace candidacy are not clearly so much that he is viewed as a "racist," held by 47 per cent, but rather that he is an "extremist," believed by 55 per cent and that he is a "sectional candidate," held by 63 per cent. The public by and large is evenly divided on the proposition that Wallace is "dangerous because he is trying to divide America."

Here is how the total Wallace vote today is distributed among key categories in the population compared with the percentages each group normally contributes to the whole electorate:

HOW WALLACE VOTES ARE DISTRIBUTED

A cross section of 1,524 voters was recently asked by the Harris Survey:

Rivals too serious

WASHINGTON — It seems to me the Presidential candidates are entirely too intense and serious this time around. We all realize the stakes are high, that America is beset by troubles, etc., but there ought to be enough time for a jest or two.

Winston Churchill once said he admired a man who could smile while he fought, and I'll go along with that. The late Adlai Stevenson and John F. Kennedy were famed for their wit, although some folks think Stevenson might have done better if he'd left the jokes alone. Since JFK won, it's hard to say whether his humor helped him or hurt him.

Today, the only presidential aspirants who are using gags with any frequency are Sen. Eugene McCarthy and Gov. George Wallace, both minority candidates. Rockefeller, Humphrey and Nixon are somewhat sober-sided. In 1964 LBJ was dour, leaving the humor field almost completely to Barry Goldwater.

File of jokes

I have here a file of the jokes Goldwater used in that election year and it's surprising how many of them hold up. Either his writers had an eye for the future or the situation hasn't changed much in the last four years. Here's a selection of Goldwater gags, made in speeches.

These are your questions

CAN DISEASED tonsils cause rheumatic fever and heart disease?

The possibility of developing rheumatic fever because of chronically diseased tonsils is not very great. I emphasize this because I find that too many people live in terror of this possibility every time they have an infection of the tonsils.

It is a known fact that infections caused by streptococcus bacteria are responsible for rheumatic fever. But there are so many other factors involved in the cause of this disease that the constant fear of it can be far more destructive than a mild attack, even if it does occur.

There are very specific reasons why infected tonsils should be removed. Repeated infection, glands in the neck, high fevers and infections of the ears are sufficient reasons for their removal without the additional burden of fear of rheumatic fever. Same, sensible reasons for the removal of the tonsils can be presented to the patient without introducing the terrifying suggestions that rheumatic fever "may" occur if they are not taken out.

Since there is some relationship, all foci of infection should be removed. This rule is a healthy one wherever chronic infection persists. Rheumatic fever happens to be a specific disease that involves many distant organs of the body. The joints, the heart and the lungs can be affected as a complication of rheumatic fever.

The operation, tonsillectomy, is so safe that if a streptococcus infection is present the advantages of having the tonsils removed are great, and obviate the possible secondary illnesses.

YMCA to launch camp period today at Hidden Lake

STROUDSBURG — YMCA Day Camp at Hidden Lake has completed its first two week session.

The second period begins Monday.

A total of 40 youths took part in the initial session. The natural setting at the lake lends itself to an outdoor experience for those in attendance.

The various age groups constructed their own camp areas under the guidance of their counselors. Three of the areas erected colorful teepees while the pioneer group built a large rustic shelter.

Fishing from the shore of the lake appeared to be a popular activity next to swimming in the refreshing and sparkling water.

Diving from float
Diving from the aluminum float and paddling the new silver colored canoes thru the smooth waters was another experience never to be forgotten.

The YMCA aquatic skill program is carried over into the camp period. The camper has an opportunity to improve his or her swimming by passing the various skills in the minnow, fish, flying fish and shark classifications.
Camp director Jim

Chamberlain announced last week, although the camp program is based on a two week period, if there are any families who might not be able to send their children for the two week period, the Y camp office will accept registrations for one week at a time.

Delaware man placed in jail

STROUDSBURG — Russell F. Hammond of Newport, Del., Friday was committed to Monroe County Jail by Stroudsburg Borough Police.

Hammond is charged with public intoxication and will be arraigned today.

The bidding:
East 1♥
South 1♠
West 4♥
North Pass

Opening lead—five of hearts. The bidding by the opponents frequently provides declarer with a blueprint of their hands. Though the picture may not always be entirely clear, declarer will often obtain all the information he needs to guide him to the best line of play.

For example, take this deal where South is in four spades and West leads a heart. East takes the queen and plays the ace, which South ruffs.

Declarer sees that, come what may, he must lose two club tricks, so his only chance for the contract is to avoid a trump loser.

Note that South's method of play, unusual though it is, cannot cost him a trick and gives him a chance to gain one at the same time. If he finds West with the Q-10-x or Q-x-x-x, leading the jack does no harm, but if he is lucky enough to find West with the Q-x-x, he picks up the suit without loss and may furthermore wind up with his name in the paper.

Ordinarily, with this spade holding, declarer would lead a low spade to the king and another one back towards the jack—hoping East was dealt Q-x or Q-x-x, in which case South would lose no spade tricks.

But declarer does not have to be a mindreader to realize that this method of play is sure to fail in the present case. It is obvious that West has the queen of spades at trick three, intend-trump bid over a spade.

Declarer has no way of knowing whether West's spade holding consists of Q-10-x, Q-x-x, Q-10-x-x, or Q-x-x-x, but he should proceed on the basis that West has one of these holdings.

Accordingly, he leads the jack of spades at trick three, intending to finesse if West follows low.

As it happens, this play settles the entire issue, since West's queen is trapped whether he covers the jack or not. As a result South makes the contract.

Note that South's method of play, unusual though it is, cannot cost him a trick and gives him a chance to gain one at the same time. If he finds West with the Q-10-x or Q-x-x-x, leading the jack does no harm, but if he is lucky enough to find West with the Q-x-x, he picks up the suit without loss and may furthermore wind up with his name in the paper.

Art in the country

Along with paintings of the 1890's to be shown at the antique show sponsored by the Mountainhome Methodist Church on Wednesday July 17, Mrs. Gordon Cashman and Joann Brandt, guides at Quiet Valley Farm Museum, will demonstrate how a country girl of that period painted on stones and a city girl at a boarding house produced her ladylike art.

Just Between Us—

By Bobby Westbrook

With an even hotter heat wave predicted for this week, I am grateful that it's coming on the weeks' vacation that I'm spending with the grandchildren at the shore. There's nothing that adds a fillup to a vacation like knowing that other people are suffering.

Actually, I doubt if you'll be suffering all that much and there are many exciting things coming up which I'll miss: installation of a new pastor at the Stroudsburg Presbyterian Church on Sunday morning and the Allentown Band Concert on Sunday night.

And in between there was the prestigious reception for the Philadelphia Ballet at the new Pocono Art Center home in the former Camp Wyomissing along the Delaware on Sunday afternoon—and that's only the first day.

I did manage to get a peak at the outdoor art show on Friday in the Court House Square which looked fascinating as ever. I doubt if any other vacation spot can offer anything as varied as the Poconos do just as a matter of course.

But they do offer something for me that the Poconos can't and that's total non-involvement. My idea of sheer luxury is to not have to do anything without feeling that I'm shirking my duty.

The shore is a wonderful place for that because I can sit on the beach for hours watching the waves rise up like satin, break into a froth of white hulle trimmed with pearls and iridescents, and edge the shore with white lace. After a week maybe I can even describe it without making it sound like a wedding dress.

But any way, the ocean so busy breathing in and out and making waves seems to relieve me of the necessity of doing anything at all. Except, of course, watching the grandchildren put the ocean to its happiest possible use.

Local group visits girls' job corps

TANNERSVILLE — As a follow-up on the program on the Keystone Job Corps Center for Girls near Drums, a small group from the Tannersville Lutheran Parish visited the complex of buildings in a picturesque valley which houses the job training center, once a Boy's Vocational School.

Karen Adams, one of the group, has given a detailed report of their visit. Barbara Beasley and Linda Innes who had been guests at the Lutheran Church Women's meeting in Tannersville, were there to greet the group with the center director, Platki.

The girls took time to see their dormitory. Although the rooms were crowded, each girl had a certain privacy thanks to partitions and the arrangement of furniture which included a desk, bed, dresser and wardrobe for each girl.

At least five more similar dormitories skirted the campus, each named after a President of the United States.

The main classroom building, although old, they found cheerfully decorated and cleanly maintained inside.

On the two floors and in the basement were classes in creative design and sewing as well as the IBM computer training area.

Such is the quality of the clothing designed and sewn by the girls that they are often asked to display it in Hazleton.

The group was told that IBM hires many of the girls trained in the operation of the school's own IBM machines.

The library was housed in another building which also contained the electronics training area. The visitors were told that women were often better suited for soldering jobs and detailed work because of their nimble fingers and their patience and care for precise operations. In its own building, stocked with medical supplies, hospital beds and dummies to practice on, a training program for nursing jobs is carried on. The instructor reported that some of the girls are already serving as nurses aides in the Wilkes-Barre Veterans Hospital, and in a nearby home for retarded children.

An old cow barn has been converted into a modern cafeteria with octagonal tables built around the old pillars of the cow stalls.

The group also visited the recreation center and the co-op store where the girls can buy good quality clothing at reduced prices and which also serves as a training ground for girls interested in merchandising.

Mrs. Adams closed her report by saying "Perhaps the most significant thing about our visit was the friendly spirit and well-groomed appearance displayed by most of the girls."

Niagara 'Falls' — honeymoon's over

Gabriella Herrmann, 14, the youngest of eight riders to perform on their famed Lipizzaner horses tonight through Wednesday grooms the lead horse Favorite Contessa Siglavly in preparation for the show. Performances to be held in Stroudsburg High Stadium are under the auspices of the Pocono Mountain Jaycees. (Staff Photo by Arnold)

Young stallions to perform on Stroudsburg field tonight

STROUDSBURG — The little white mule tethered to the trailer grazed in the hot sun, dogs ran around sniffing at the ground, and the onlookers milled and stared as the sleek gray-white horses stepped down from their trailer.

Eight Lipizzaner stallions, among the rarest and finest horses in the world, arrived at the Stroudsburg High School Stadium Sunday for a three-day stay.

Performances will begin at 8 p.m. today, Tuesday and Wednesday.

The famed White Stallions, who are in town under the auspices of the Pocono Mountain Jaycees, are owned by Professor Ottomar Herrmann. They received rave reviews after performing before 9,000 persons in Allentown Saturday.

Prof. Herrmann has been involved with the Lipizzaners all his life. His family, in fact, has performed on and trained them for 300 years. He once owned more than 70 of the horses — now there are 20 left.

His life has not been easy. During the war, Herrmann fled Austria ahead of Hitler with his 73 Lipizzaners and sought sanctuary deep in Czechoslovakia. But he was caught by the oncoming Russians, and 63 of his horses were taken from him.

"You could say nothing to them," Herrmann said, rather tonelessly, "or they would kill you."

But he managed to keep eight of the horses, and now their number is growing again. In the U. S. for the past three and a half years, he owns a small farm near Arcadia, Fla., and is expectantly looking forward to becoming a U.S. citizen, as will his family, "within the next year."

His horses, however, are not all kept in Florida. They are quartered in Tennessee, Connecticut, New York and New Hampshire. In case of emergency, Herrmann will not again lose his livelihood.

Twelve people were at work Sunday setting up the temporary quarters for their stay here. The people live in trailers and the horses in a sort of tent stable. There are eight riders in the show, all of them members of Herrmann's immediate family.

Horses, by the way, are not the only interest of the family. Herrmann's daughter, Brigitta, has 14 poodles running around the area. She calls them "my hobby."

About 1,500 seats have already been filled for the local performance according to Evan Klotz of the Jaycees. The stadium can hold about 5,000 people.

Klotz said that all profits will go to the Jaycees Community Service Fund.

STROUDSBURG — It may be just water over the dam, but Niagara Falls, traditional spot for honeymooners, has settled for a popularity spot behind the Poconos.

This is not official, but since it comes from the manager of the Visitors and Convention Bureau of Niagara Falls, Canada, it's probably true.

J. Ross Kenzie of Niagara Falls told the Pocono Record that it is indeed true that Niagara Falls is no longer number one. "I don't have any recent figures," he said, "and I don't know exactly who's on top, but I would suspect the Poconos."

Robert Uguccioni, executive secretary of the Pocono Mountains Vacation Bureau, said his organization was "highly delighted" to find themselves on top. "But, of course," Uguccioni added, "we don't plan to sit still. We want to stay on top."

Kenzie attributed the "fall" of Niagara to a number of factors. Among them is the tremendous amount of advertising done by the Pocono honeymoon resorts (according to Uguccioni, local honeymoon resorts advertise more than any other type) and the "package deals" offered honeymooners here.

"In your area," Kenzie said, "a young couple knows exactly what a week is going to cost them. They hand over their $500 or however much it is, and find everything arranged."

Kenzie stressed that the number of honeymooners coming to Niagara Falls has steadily increased over the years. It's just that the increase there has not been as great as the increase here.

He said there were over 1,800 honeymoon couples registered for their "spent their honeymoon in Niagara Falls, Canada, the honeymoon capital of the world."

"We know that Niagara Falls is still the traditional spot," Kenzie said. "We've had the tradition for over 100 years and we still have the tradition, and we know it. But like everything else the tradition has to be promoted and we haven't done it enough."

To demonstrate the tradition, he hummed a few bars of the old song "Shuffle off to Buffalo." "To Niagara on a sleeper, there's no honeymoon that's cheaper, so away we go, shuffle off to Buffalo."

But apparently people have been shuffling off to Pocono, because here they are. Uguccioni attributed the rise in honeymoon couples here to the fact that many honeymoon resorts specialize to such an extent.

"This individuality is not true anywhere else in the country as far as I know," he said. "You're a honeymooner. There's nobody patronizing you, nobody putting up with you. That's an important thing."

Kenzie agreed that the individuality is important. "When I went on my honeymoon," he said, "I wanted

Girl, 8, drowns in lake

POCONO PINES — An 8-year-old Shillington girl was pronounced dead at General Hospital of Monroe County Sunday at 4:35 p.m. after being pulled from about six feet of water at Lake Naomi.

Dead is Barbara Manderbach, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Manderbach.

According to State Police from Mount Pocono, Mrs. Manderbach had driven her two daughters to the beach area at Lake Naomi and then returned to a home she and her husband purchased recently.

The older daughter, age 10, saw her sister disappear beneath the water. This was at 2:30 p.m. She ran to a lifeguard and told him. He immediately entered the water and found the girl on the bottom of the lake in waters approximately six feet deep.

The guard immediately began mouth-to-mouth resuscitation. While he was working on the girl a doctor vacationing in the area was located and he too administered aid. This was continued in the ambulance as the girl was rushed to General Hospital of Monroe County.

Three doctors and several nurses worked for more than a half hour to revive the young girl. She was pronounced dead at 4:35 p.m.

The swimming area at the lake is marked by a rope in the water. This rope is approximately 30 feet from the shoreline and water is about three to three and a half feet deep.

The girl's body was found about five feet outside the roped off area.

The girl was pulled from the water by Allan Wheeler, a sailing instructor from Ithaca, N.Y.

Monroe County Coroner John C.F. Foelker Sunday night said death was accidental by drowning.

Trailer fire brings out 2 companies

EAST STROUDSBURG — Fire companies from Delaware Water Gap and Marshalls Creek were called Saturday at 3:30 p.m. to a trailer fire on Interstate Rt. 80 inside the East Stroudsburg Borough limits.

A car driven by Bernard Stefanovich of Rahway, N.J., pulling a small trailer loaded with furniture caught fire as it moved along the limited access highway.

Delaware Water Gap Fire Chief Robert Smith said the cause of the fire is believed to be a cigarette thrown or blown into the trailer.

Scene of the fire was between the East Stroudsburg and Marshalls Creek exits.

Smith said damage amounted to $1,000 to the furniture and $500 to the trailer.

Police seek car driver

STROUDSBURG — State Police at Stroudsburg are looking for a hit-run driver involved in an accident Saturday at 7:52 p.m. in Marshalls Creek.

The unknown car struck a car driven by Robert D. Meres, 53, of Allendale, N.J., as he attempted to make a left turn from Rt. 402 onto a legislative route.

Police reported no injuries and estimated damage to the Meres vehicle at $200.

He said that land was very expensive, and added to this was the lack of knowledge of what the scouts would receive from the government for Camp Weygadt.

"If the merger goes on schedule," Kovacs said, "they can probably accommodate us (the Delaware Valley Council) next year. There are big savings involved there for us—it's of course cheaper to operate two camps than three."

If the merger fails, Kovacs said, the local scout council would have at least two years time to find and develop another camp.

Council changes would include a new office, tentatively planned near the intersection of Rt. 512 and Route 22, midway between Allentown and Bethlehem, and staff changes. Among these changes would be the assignment of one scout executive for the council instead of three.

to be alone. But, other people apparently like to be with other honeymooners. Perhaps they feel a little less conspicuous meeting another group of people in a similar situation."

Kenzie said that besides trying to attract more honeymooners, his community was branching out into other aspects of the resort business.

"We're gearing ourselves to family groups," Kenzie said.

"In the newer hotels, many rooms are being made with two double beds—rooms that can sleep six easily. I've seen rooms that can even sleep 18."

"But," he added, "many people in the area are concerned about the $800 million a year business of honeymooning that only two or three of the hotels in the area are soliciting."

Kenzie was quick to answer to a remark that Pocono resort owners would drool with happiness when they heard of his remarks, which in essence were originally presented before the Niagara Falls City Council.

"You can get them drooling now," he said, "but tell them we're gonna get them."

Uguccioni had the answer to this, "You can tell him we're Number 1, but we still try harder."

Allentown band plays on, on

EAST STROUDSBURG — The night was made for music and "the band played on."

For those came to listen to the Allentown Band Sunday night under the stars in the bleachers at East Stroudsburg Memorial Stadium, the band played well.

The Band played on in untiring professional movements, presenting repertoire of musical enlightenment during the "Pops" concert, moving its listeners towards a standing ovation.

Under the leadership of Dr. Albertus L. Meyers, the Band played Edward F. Goldman's "On The Mall" inspiring the listeners with such enthusiasm that they followed with their own singing and whistling in accompaniment.

A lifetime admirer of John Phillip Sousa, Dr. Meyers not only concluded the selections with "Stars and Stripes Forever" but continued with other Sousa favorites as encores.

Selections included tunes from "On a Clear Day You Can See Forever" by Lerner-Lane and from the Music Man by Meredith Wilson, ariated by standard classics such as "William Tell Overture" by Rossini, and the "1812 Overture" by Tchaikowski.

Lighter entertainment came with "Bubbling Woodwinds" by Schenke, variations on the theme "Pop Goes the Weasel," by Cailliet with some added comedy in the novelty named "The Strike," a striking specialty of and by the band members used for the intermission break when each section of instruments "leaves the stage, one at a time until the last two men are also forced to go on a "ten minute strike."

Several coronet and clarinet solos were also given to charm even the younger listeners such as "Dizzy Finger" played by Robert Fegley who also did a solo for E-flat clarinet, "La Tourterelle."

Other offerings were: Invitation to the Valse, Weber; Slavonic Rhapsody, Friedman and a Sousa march, "Semper Fidelis."

Special guests included patients from the Cherry Valley Nursing Home, Pleasant Valley Manor and Laurel Manor patients were also invited to attend.

Ex-E-burg doctor, wife, found dead

OAKLAND, Calif. — The cyanide death of two former East Stroudsburg residents last Tuesday is still puzzling the Oakland Police Dept.

Found dead in their Oakland home Tuesday were Dr. Laurence W. Kinsell, 60 and his wife, Martha, 54.

Dr. Kinsell practiced in the General Hospital of Monroe County from 1935 to 1942.

Mrs. Kinsell was the daughter of the late Mrs. Arthur Williams Holbrook of East Stroudsburg.

She was the sister of Mrs. Camille Harvey, Maple Ave., East Stroudsburg.

The Oakland coroner's office has tentatively called the deaths a double suicide.

Oakland police said the husband and wife were found in their home last Tuesday after Dr. Kinsell failed to show up in his office for work.

According to his secretary, Mrs. Katherine Barun, Dr. Kinsell called and said he would be late for work because his wife was sick from food poisoning.

Later in the day, Mrs. Barun went to the home in a fashionable part of Oakland and found Dr. Kinsell and his wife dead.

Dr. Kinsell was in an upstairs bedroom, fully dressed and half under a bed. The telephone was off the hook and tangled round his foot.

Mrs. Kinsell was found in a first-floor livingroom on a couch and dressed in a nightgown and robe.

Oakland police said the pair was in perfect health and the circumstances surrounding the death still remain a mystery.

The coroner's office has tentatively listed the death as suicide, but no notes were found, police said.

The couple had just returned from a 52-day ocean tour. In 1950, Dr. Kinsell founded

No injuries in accident

PERN RIDGE — State Police from Pern Ridge investigated a two-car accident Sunday night on Rt. 115. They reported no injuries.

Drivers were Rocco Restuccia of Wilkes-Barre and Martha Smith of Pocono Lake.

The Smith vehicle was traveling north on Rt. 115 and had made a left turn when it was struck from the rear by the Restuccia vehicle.

Trailer being hauled hit

STROUDSBURG — A 29-year-old Emmaus driver collided Friday at 3:30 p.m. with a trailer on Clipperfield Drive. There were no injuries and total damages is estimated at $75.

According to Stroud Twp. police, Joseph Hagerman, 36, of Stroudsburg R.D. 1, pulling a trailer, made a left turn and a car driven by Frederick Kistler collided with the trailer.

Delaware Valley board, approves move

Area scouts may be involved in three-council merger

STROUDSBURG — More than 13,000 Boy Scouts will find themselves in a new council on January 1 if the proposed tri-council merger of the local Delaware Valley Area Council, Lehigh and Bethlehem Area Councils is approved.

August 12 has been set for the final vote in the Delaware Valley Area Council in which area scouts are among 3,912 members. The move had previously been approved by the executive board, according to Elmer Morgan, Scout Executive.

Morgan said that the plan has been in the works "for some 20 months now," he said he sees "significant advantages" for each council if the merger goes through.

High on the list of advantages as far as the Delaware Valley Area Council is concerned, Morgan said, is that the merger will alleviate the necessity of finding new camp.

The present Camp Weygadt, in Columbia, N.J., is to become part of the Delaware Water Gap

National Recreation, Morgan said.

"Since both of the other councils have their camps located in Monroe County (Bethlehem's Camp Minsi on Stillwater Lake and Allentown's Camp Trexler, near Kresgeville), camps will be most convenient for local scouts."

Pocono District Scout Executive James Kovacs of Stroudsburg added that finding a suitable camp for the council had been of grave concern.

He said that land was very expensive, and added to this was the lack of knowledge of what the scouts would receive from the government for Camp Weygadt.

"If the merger goes on schedule," Kovacs said, "they can probably accommodate us (the Delaware Valley Council) next year. There are big savings involved there for us—it's of course cheaper to operate two camps than three."

If the merger fails, Kovacs said, the local scout council would have at least two years time to find and develop another camp.

Council changes would include a new office, tentatively planned near the intersection of Rt. 512 and Route 22, midway between Allentown and Bethlehem, and staff changes. Among these changes would be the assignment of one scout executive for the council instead of three.

The scout executive would have two assistants, Morgan said, probably chosen from among the remaining two council executives. Morgan added that a new name had not yet been chosen for the council.

At this point, both the Bethlehem and the Delaware Valley Executive boards have approved the merger. It comes up for a vote in the Lehigh Council in Allentown July 22. Morgan said he is "reasonably sure" of their approval, because of the advantages involved for all three councils.

After executive board approval, general membership approval is required for the move. The general membership committee consists of the executive board, institutional representatives, and council members at large.

The local council's meeting is August 12. Neither Lehigh nor Bethlehem have yet set a date for theirs.

Committees were established to study membership, camping, finance, personnel, program, as well as the legal problems and office location. These committees had previously completed their reports and presented them to the Steering Committee, which consisted of equal representation from each of the three councils.

Local Scouters on committees were William S. Wyckoff of Stroudsburg on the steering committee; William Schiebel of Stroudsburg on membership study; Lt. Col. Paul Felencer of Stroudsburg and Asher Resh of East Stroudsburg on program study; and Joseph H. Beers of Bangor on office study.

Player decides on vacation after winning British Open

CARNOUSTIE, Scotland (UPI)—The U.S. PGA championship will go on without Gary Player next week. The little South African has decided on an extra seven weeks vacation at his farm outside Johannesburg after winning the British Open title for the second time.

Player would have rejoined the U.S. circuit had he not won over Carnoustie's 7,252-yard layout, but his one-over-par, 72-hole score of 289 was good enough to give him the title, two strokes ahead of former winners Jack Nicklaus of Columbus, Ohio, and New Zealand leftie Bob Charles.

After his win, the 32-year-old South African, who won the title in 1959 as the first stage of his grand-slam of big four championships said: "This win means I can now spend ten weeks with my family on the farm instead of three. Now I can read about the boys having nightmares when they face four-foot putts."

He has been on the road for the past 17 weeks. Player, who started the final 18 holes two strokes down on Billy Casper, a Mormon elder from San Diego, who is the leading money-winner on the PGA tour and one stroke behind Charles, went into the lead at the sixth hole but really wrapped up the championship on the 14th where he shot an eagle, three. He belted two tremendous woods into the wind, on the 485-yard hole, which his second shot falling two feet from the pin. He made no mistake with the putt and afterwards strode ten feet tall.

Player, who was playing with Nicklaus, lost a stroke when he bogied no. 16, and he looked in bad trouble when he landed in the rough on 18. However, he put the ball 25 feet from the pin with his third shot and two putted for his par. Nicklaus needed an eagle for a tie. He

Australians win doubles

PARIS (UPI)—Roy Emerson and Rod Laver of Australia Sunday won the doubles final of the international Professional tennis championships at Roland Garros Stadium when they beat fellow Australians Ken Rosewall and Fred Stolle 1-6, 3-6, 11-9, 6-3 and 6-2.

The victory was a revenge for Emerson and Laver who at last month's French International Open lost to Rosewall and Stolle 6-3, 6-4 and 6-3.

Charles lost his chance at the third hole when he took a double-bogey. He played bravely after that in partnership with Casper but never could produce the necessary stroke of genius. Casper, who set a course record 68 in the second round to open a four-stroke lead, struggled throughout the final round when his short game fell to pieces. He finished with a 78 for 292 and fourth place, taking six bogies during the last 18 holes.

Player picked up $7,200 for his first prize, but the title, his first big win since the 1965 U.S. Open has him thinking in terms of a second slam. He sent home for an old "ping" putter that he was advised to discard by several people, Nicklaus included, and this was the key to his success. "I played well in the U. S., but my putting let me down. The putts dropped here, and now that I've won the British Open again I hope I can repeat the best golf of my life," Player said.

At one stage it looked as if Gay Brewer could come from behind to win but he folded on the back nine, making bogies on the last four to shoot 74 and finished in a three-way tie for sixth place at 295.

Ann Landers

Too much generosity

Dear Ann Landers: I'm writing in to the mother who found goodballs in her son's pocket. He said he was using them to stay awake studying for college exams.

When I was in undergraduate school I, too, relied on "bennies"—until one day I woke up feeling very strange. I discovered my heartbeat was 186. I was frightened out of my wits and went immediately to our family doctor. He gave me some invaluable advice which I'd like to pass on.

It seems the doctor was an Air Force pilot in World War II. The medicines used to give the pilots artificial stimulants for long-distance bombing raids. They stopped, however, when the casualty rate increased. They discovered those artificial stimulants did funny things to a pilot's judgment, vision and space perception. The pilots were ordered to lay off the bennies and to take 10- or 15-minute naps when they felt the need for a boost.

I tried the pilot-doctor's suggestion and it worked splendidly. I was able to study efficiently for about 18 hours out of a 24-hour period. My grades improved and I had to admit that the cramming I had done on "bennies" had not produced the high marks I'd hoped for.

Pass the word, will you, Ann? I spent nine years in college and tried just about everything the students are trying now, so I ought to know.

COLORADO PROF: Dear Prof: Consider it passed. A word from one who has made the scene packs a much harder wallop. And thanks for the lesson, Prof. Those who listen will go to the head of the class.

If you have trouble getting along with your parents ... if you can't get them to let you live your own life, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Bugged By Parents? How to Get More Freedom." Send 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Erma Bombeck

Why do men cry?

I would like to say that my poor memory of people's names is a result of premature senility. I'd sure like to say that.

With faces, I'm not bad, but I live in fear of turning out like the woman from Chicago who spotted a familiar face in a Los Angeles terminal, ran up excitedly, threw her arms around his neck and said, "Well, if it isn't my old friend from home Mr. ... ah ..."

"Mr. Shapiro, your butcher," he said dryly.

I knew I had to do something about my problem after an incident last week when a voice on the phone said, "Hello, Erma, this is —, how about lunch?" I didn't know — from a hole in the sewer. I blamed it on being 41 and regressing, so I accepted.

Surprise host As I wandered around outside the dining room not knowing whom to look for, a woman popped out from behind the potted fern and gushed, "You don't know me, but I read your column and thought you'd be a scream at lunch!"

I discussed this problem with my husband. (Who hasn't laughed at lunch in 15 years.) "The real secret to remembering people's names," he said, "is concentration. Don't you ever pay any attention to the little name tags people wear in large groups that say, 'Hello, there! My name is ...'"

"Yes," I said. "The last time I went up to this familiar face and said, 'If it isn't my old roommate Iwoan Hliws!' The idiot turned out to be Naomi Smith with her card on upside down."

"Some of this is Freudian," he said, "indicating you don't really care about people at all."

"Is this why your mother has called me Edna since we've been married?"

"That's different," he said.
